Joanne Fox Phillips

Joanne Fox Phillips is the chief audit executive for SemGroup Corporation, a multinational oil and gas company headquartered in Tulsa, Oklahoma. She ventured into the world of fiction primarily to challenge herself and to create a diversion from the world of facts and figures where her professional brain usually resides. Her first novel Revenge of the Cube Dweller was published in July 2014 by River Grove Books in Austin, Texas.

Joanne was born in San Francisco and grew up in Menlo Park, California. She graduated (barely) from Menlo-Atherton High School and after a few dead-end jobs moved to Austin, Texas where she worked her way through the University of Texas at Austin, graduating in 1981. She began her career with Price Waterhouse in Houston and after six years resigned and became the stay at home mother to her children. She returned to work after being home for fourteen years when her husband retired from his corporate tax career and drove her completely crazy hanging around the house. She was hired by El Paso Corporation in 2001 as a senior pipeline accountant. Five years later she moved to Dynegy, Inc. a leading independent power producer as a director in their internal audit department and in 2010 moved to Tulsa to take her position with SemGroup.

As a CPA, certified internal auditor and certified fraud examiner, Joanne has expert knowledge of internal controls and how they can be exploited.

Joanne has two marvelous sons, Clayton and Ted. She currently resides in Tulsa, Oklahoma with her husband Phil and her two rescue dogs, Rocky and Memphis.
